Citizen for a Better Carbondale meeting at 8 AM at Berean Baptist Church. Present: Rev. Pullis, Rev. Harzen, Mounique Horan, Donald Hoyle, Esther Singer, Joe (?) from Crystal Lake. A planning session: How to implement the program to get professional help for the city to come to terms with its financial problems. A writer-base group will be invited to the next meeting. I was pleased to be asked to attend -- I assume that I am now a member of the group. There were three dozen donuts for the seven of us. The meeting was productive but, for me, took place too early in the day. At the conclusion of the meeting, Hoyle took me aside and we talked about the Gravity Shops. The YMCA owns them now and they are considering selling them to Marino Zazzera. I tried to persuade Hoyle not to sell to Zazzera, because he will probably tear them down. Hoyle said he would keep me informed. He seemed like he was being very much more concerned with the building than I would have suspected. He asked me if I needed a ride and I said yes. He drove me to the High School where I arrived at 9:15 AM. I signed in and went down to the shop. Ran into Laura on the way. She was with one of her girl friends. We talked about the honor roll and I congratulated her again on making the honor roll for the 3rd Quarter. I went down to the shop and John and his colleagues were all there. It was a very interesting experience. Kevin Bilko, an eleventh grader, is the fellow who printed the membership certificates on an A.B. Dick 360 offset (11" x 17") press. I watched ^{the} whole process. There was some problem with the plate and Mr. Scavo got involved and we were ^(in a wholly positive manner) blessed by his presence -- the plate had to be re-shot. Had he not been there, we would have had to accept a blotchy certificate. Kevin knows what he is doing, but he is not as funny as I am when it comes to printing. Scavo re-shot the plate and set it up and I was very pleased that he did. The certificates look very nice -- back to back copy -- and now we can mail them to all members. Perhaps with renewal forms for 1983-1984. Give them their 1982-83 membership certificates and say, in effect, if you would like one for next year, renew your membership. The front and back of the membership certificate is given on the following page.
